Not illustrated. 1850 Excerpt: ...and the energy, the patience, and the perseverance of the man of genius, and that he has achieved a triumph which has justly immortalized his name. "Resolved, That we will use our humble endeavors to promote the success of this work, by testifying to its accuracy, its beauty, and its finish of execution. Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by its officers, and submitted to the leading journals of the city for publication. "The passage of these resolutions was accompanied by complimentary remarks from several of the artists present, at the close of which, Mr. Belden arose and addressed the meeting with some appropriate remarks, returning his thanks to the artists engaged upon the work for this expression of their regard, and assuring them of the satisfaction he felt in having congregated together a body of men so well calculated to carry out ideas, which he might conceive, but which he could never have executed without their assistance. "The following resolution was then adopted: "Resolved, That if this Model should be destroyed by fire, or other accident, while we are living, we will hold ourselves in readiness at a moment's warning to rally to the standard of Mr. Belden for its re-construction. "At the close of the meeting, the following resolution was passed by those engaged exclusively upon the Model: "Resolved, That our thanks be presented to Messrs. Evers, Barnes and Coates, for the splendid embellishments with which they have graced our work in the views of the mercantile and manufacturing establishments, represented upon the Canopy of the Model. "JOHN EVERS, Chairman. "Chas. Mcdonalp, Secretary." 8 The Model of New-York is a piece of mechanism entirely different from a map or painting....
